

ROLLING IN THE MUD

An Analysis of the Intersections and Tensions between Women's Liberation, Animal Liberation, and Activist Methods

a talk by Katie Kitchen, Tom Regan Fellow & Undergrad Student

PETA and a Pornographic Culture

A Feminist Analysis of "I'd rather go naked than wear fur"

Why is there such a strong push to divide movements into their smallest components rather than bringing them together conceptually in order to fight what may prove to be the same problem?

How did the concerns of feminists over sexuality—best known through the debates of the “feminist sex wars” in the 1980s—inform animal rights discussions?

By analyzing the debates that fueled feminist animal rights organizations, as well as PETA’s usage of gender politics, this talk contributes to that understanding.

If PETA is the largest animal rights organization in the world, why does it fall short when it comes to human rights issues?

Only by fully understanding oppression, can advocates foster an activist space that genuinely advances the liberation of all beings.

I'D RATHER GO NAKED

THAN WEAR FUR

STAND UP FOR ANIMALS PETA

STAND UP FOR ANIMALS PETA

STAND UP FOR ANIMALS PETA

7pm
Thursday
March 20
119 IG Greer

App State
Philosophy
Club

FOR DISABILITY ACCOMODATIONS, VISIT ODR.APPSTATE.EDU